- Notes:
1. Due to variations in calculation techniques, festivals may vary (according to some Hindu communities), by up to one day on either side of those shown. The above dates have been calculated for London. Dates for other longitudes may be different. Boxes in light blue indicate second date of two possible dates; check to see which applies.
 2. In many UK temples, some major festivals are now also celebrated on one of the adjacent weekends (as many members are working during the week).
 3. For festivals spanning more than one day, the above dates refer to the first day, unless specified otherwise (e.g. for Diwali, when the date of the main day is indicated).
 4. Do check these dates before visiting temples or making other arrangements (we try our best to be accurate, but can take no responsibility for dates being entirely correct.)
